Mr. Noggle,

I work with Senator Begich on maritime and related matters and wondered if we could speak Monday regarding the former cutter Storis (AKA Vila Queen). I know the vessel is in Ensenada about to be ripped apart but am concerned about continued reports of PCB laced insulation and other contamination. I have seen documentation that indicates this contamination was removed but hear conflicting reports it was not. It's worrisome seeing press reports of the fire aboard the ex-Bering Star at the same scrapyard. Our office was involved in trying to preserve this relic for historic purposes but lost that fight. I do think contamination issues are a particular concern and would be interested in your perspective on this matter.

I will be in Juneau Monday and Tuesday before returning to DC. Thanks.
